

Massachusetts Fulbright Association – Annual Concert at Harvard

Call for Musicians!

The Massachusetts Fulbright Association traditionally hosts an “Afternoon of Music” at Harvard University in the spring. This year’s concert will take place on Sunday, March 6, 2011.

The performers are YOU – the incredible wealth of musical talent among our students, visiting scholars, members, and alumni. The Fulbright Association is traditionally a strong supporter of music, and our community is no exception.

Performances may include solo repertoire, chamber music, and collaborations among our members. The concert may include both professional and amateur musicians. Depending on program length, we may have a separate event for our professional musicians.

Though it’s early yet, please contact us SOON to tell us that you’re interested in playing. We will hold an informal meeting in the fall to get to know each other and talk about repertoire options for the concert.

What to do if you’re interested:

1. Contact Ariana Falk, Music Director of the Massachusetts Fulbright Association, by email or phone. If you’re not sure whether you’re eligible or the right person to play, get in touch! We are inclusive of all of our members. Please include: instrument/voice, your affiliation with Fulbright, ideas for performance, and contact information.

Ariana Falk, D.M.A. Cello Performance
Music Director, Massachusetts Fulbright Association
Fulbright Scholar, Germany, 2006-7
203-464-4924
ariana.falk@gmail.com

2. If you’re on Facebook, join our event, newly created:
<http://www.facebook.com/event.php?eid=111309895599162#!/event.php?eid=111309895599162>

